Amy's 13th birthday! TEENAGER! Run for you life!! AND a, teenage party... McDonalds.

Anna in make-up for her TV Debut on a Chinese children's show. There she is on "green screen!! Of course, she got to pose with the show's star!

Amy, Anna and Tony at the 4th of July festivities. Papa was in Thailand teaching medical doctors how to speak in public. Mom... was holding the camera.

Merry Christmas and Happy 2010 from the Podolinsky Family in Singapore!

Anna's bubbly personality at the Singapore Botanical Garden. She also is a great artist. As we have no space to store masterpieces, we take digital photos and save them for posterity (or at least until technology passes us up and we can't open them any more!)

Anna, Tony and papa fishing for the first time at a 'kalong!, a floating platform in the ocean. We caught a whale! (would you believe a Marlin? Would you believe we even lost our bait?)

Amy, Anna and Tony building forts at home on a rainy Singapore day. It NEVER rains in Singapore (except for weekdays, weekends and anything in between.)

Merry Christmas and Happy 2010 from the Podolinsky Family in Singapore!

Michael's business was vibrant this year despite the economy. He spoke to 8,500 Prudential Insurance agents in Jakarta and then conducted a workshop for 3000 of their leaders. 2 weeks later he spoke to a 'little! group of just 1,200 in Medan Indonesia and 2 minutes into his 2 hour talk tore his ACL (anterior cruciate ligament) He lost ALL integrity in his right knee in an instant. A few screams from the audience as he attempted to put weight on it and then he faked it for the next 2 hours, hopped down the stairs, 'hobbled! to the next gig, did another 2 hours and then an hour of photo taking while standing. The next day he was in the hospital getting operated on and a week in hospital with sister morphine as his friend. Hey... the show must go on!
